

LONDON, Oct. 6.—The flimsiness of evidence and collusion in recent divorce and matrimonial actions have become so notorious that bench and bar are rebelling against the present laws. At a meeting of the Bar Association, solicitors and lawyers urged judges to go on strike as far as divorce cases are concerned until the laws are made more rigid. Justice McCardie, sitting in King's Bench today in a breach of promise case, told a woman a minimum damage award. "These cases usually are entered solely for the purpose of inflicting public hurt upon a man who has disappointed a woman."

LITTLE OF INTEREST AT COUNCIL MEETING

An application for street lighting on Gaston and Coronation Avenues and part of St. Paul Street was also laid over, on recommendation of Superintendent Blakeborough, who stated that there would have to be considerable reconstruction of the lighting system in that neighbourhood and he advised against any additions until the changes shall have been made.

In regard to the streamers of lamps across the main streets, as asked for by the Retail Merchants Association for display on such occasions as the Fall Fair, Mr. Blakeborough reported that special sockets would be required and that it would be impossible to have them ready in time for the Fair.

The A. and T. Association wanted the Council to display a large banner across Bernard Avenue with the word "Welcome" on it, but apparently there is nothing of the sort on hand to use.

The Mayor referred to certain cases of indigency that had entailed expense upon the City recently, most of them concerned with persons who were not permanent residents of Kelowna. The City had enough to do to look after such of its own people as might meet with misfortune, and the care of all and sundry who came from other places could not be undertaken. One such case had been brought to the attention of the Government Agent at Vernon, with the view of obtaining government assistance.

By-law No. 316, conveying Lots 17 and 18, Block 19, Registered Plan 1306, to Mrs. Goldsmith for $100, was reconsidered, finally passed and adopted.

For the Public Works Committee, Ald. Meikle reported that the slough at the Fair ground had been filled so far as the street crossing was concerned at a cost of $48.50, and a little further expense would be entailed for rolling and watering.

By formal motion the Mayor and City Clerk were authorized to execute agreements under the Better Housing Act with Messrs. R. Whillis and A. Edwards, and to affix the corporate seal thereto.

Once more the question of the active existence of the City Band came up in reference to payment of the monthly grant of $40. Doubts were expressed by some of the aldermen as to whether the Band was carrying on, owing to the leader having recently resigned, it was understood. Hence it was decided to pay the grant for the month of August only, and to suspend further payments until proof is given of continuance of the Band's activities.

The question of hydro-electric power was discussed in a general way, there being nothing definite as yet in regard to conclusion of an agreement with the West Kootenay Power Co. The Mayor stated that if an agreement was reached, probably the power would be in use by March 1st next. Considerable outlays would be involved, as the present steam pumps would have to be replaced by electric-driven pumps and construction of a million gallon reservoir would probably have to be undertaken. This would require only four hours pumping per day to fill, and the pumping could be done by one man, effecting a large reduction in labour cost. Should it be decided to instal the pumps and the reservoir, it would be necessary to submit a by-law to the people for authority to borrow the necessary funds.

There being no further business, the Council adjourned until Monday, October 17th.

LAWRANCE D'ORSAY WILL APPEAR IN "TOOTLUMS"

Wealth of Merriment Promised for Thursday, Oct. 13th

"Tootlums," which is described as the funniest comedy ever presented in the theatres of English, comedy and—certainly the most popular that ever captured hearts in Canada and the United States, will be presented at the Empress Theatre on one night only, Thursday, Oct. 13th. This new play is appearing for the first time in Canada, and audiences are flocking to it just as bright and refreshing as "The Edwina," in which Mr. D'Orsay has achieved the height of his fame on this continent. "Tootlums" is presented by a 1921 organization known as Anglo-Canadian Comedies, Limited, of which Mr. D'Orsay is principal, and is booked as the first of the plays featuring greatest stars of the modern stage which is the aim of Trans-Canada Theatres, Limited. Certainly success of the venture is assured if the plays and players following are equal in merit to "Tootlums" and Mr. Lawrence D'Orsay.

A remarkably strong support is given to the great comedian, so that the play may be presented in the finest manner possible. Miss Maud Henderson was leading lady with Forbes Robertson in "The Passing of the Third Floor Back." Miss Georgie Rusholm starred in "The Sign of the Cross." Miss Kitty Coleman was picked from hundreds of competitors for the part of Mrs. Crosby in "The 13th Chair." Ernest Elton was leading man with Otis Skinner. These are among the leading characters, and the result will be, as already established during the tour, so far, a brilliant performance. Arrangements may now be made at P. B. Willits & Co.'s for selected seats for the performance.

British Columbia spruce is said to be meeting with greater popularity than ever in various parts of the world, more especially in the south where its lightness is regarded very favourably by nearly all builders.

Carrying the Made-in-B.C. gospel to the various points on Vancouver Island, a party of Vancouver and Victoria manufacturers will visit the important centres on the Island some time this month, making an auto tour and holding meetings at the various places.

BOY SCOUTS' COLUMN

Troop First Self Last
Edited by "Cougar."

October 3rd, 1921
The Patrols of the Troop will meet at the time and place appointed by the Patrol Leaders. This system of separate Patrol meetings was arranged to encourage patrol work, and we hope that something definite is being accomplished.
Our splendid Scoutmaster has at length returned with his bride to Kelowna. He is looking flourishing and tells us he has had a very enjoyable trip. We are very glad to have him back, for the Troop has missed his ready support and we hope he will continue as Scoutmaster for a very long time. It will be encouraging for him to know that at last some definite steps towards a Troop Headquarters have been taken.
The Scouts wish to thank the ladies of the I.O.D.E. very much for their kindness and trouble in holding a Tag Day on Saturday, September 24th, for the benefit of the Scouts. The very creditable sum of two hundred odd dollars, which is to go to the new quarters, was obtained.

Didn't Matter
The new candidate was canvassing votes: "Don't you see," he said to Mrs. Murphy. "If your husband supports the other side the Empire will be ruined."
"That doesn't matter; my husband works at the 'ippodrome'."

Officer (To sentry guarding powder magazine): "Supposing a bomb were to drop straight through on this magazine what would be the first thing you would do?"
Sentry: "Go up with the report, Sir!"

With the mining, lumbering and other basic industries along the coast resuming operations, the coal mines on Vancouver Island employing more men than this time last year, and the big fruit crops of the upper country and the grain crops of the prairies being harvested, British Columbia business men are regarding the coming winter with more optimistic outlook than they have revealed for some time.

Sir Herbert Tree was accosted by a stranger one day in the Haymarket. "Aren't you Beerbohm Tree?" asked the stranger.

"No," replied Tree, anxious to hide his light under a bushel. "I'm sorry I thought you were. You look uncommonly like him." "I assure you," insisted Tree, "you are mistaken."

"Well, I certainly did think you looked like him," said the stranger. "I'm sorry. I didn't mean to insult you."

The tone of the lumber market is steadily improving. Export shipments from B. C. are recommencing. A contract was let last week by the Canadian Robert Dollar Company to Grant Bros. for the logging of 15,000,000 feet of lumber at Mud Bay.

ANNUAL SPORTS DAY AT CHESTERFIELD SCHOOL

Varied Programme Keenly Enjoyed By Parents and Friends

(Contributed) On Thursday last, Sept. 29th, the boys of Chesterfield School held their annual sports, under very fine weather circumstances. There was a goodly showing of parents and friends present to witness the prowess of competitors and a very satisfactory afternoon was enjoyed by them as onlookers.

The many and varied events on the programme go to show the Old-Country spirit obtaining among these little fellows, and they had the drawing-up of the list left to them, and also they had their own Field and Race Committees, so the success of the afternoon is greatly due to the boys themselves. The finals went to prove that the handicapping had been very fairly arranged, and it is worthy of remark that out of the twenty-five pupils in the School, only two were unsuccessful on the day's prizes.

It has always been Mr. Bennett's main effort to inspire his youngsters with a keen spirit of sportsmanship more than the idea of prize-getting, and this was very apparent in the cheerful way in which those who lost the first places in the races took their beating.

An unusual event was provided by the Special Drill Squad, some twelve of the best and smartest of Capt.
Townsend's little Platoon picked for the purpose. These boys went through a very good piece of "squaddrill with arms," with only the instructor's whistle as the word of command. The audience voted this little surprise as very excellent indeed. And to put in a little amusement, the squad was broken up into squad of four, with other scratch squads gathered from the remainder of the School. All the squads were then blindfolded, put in position on the field, each one standing four or five abreast. The next procedure was to move them about, and the result can be easily imagined, as each fresh order made confusion worse confounded, and when the handkerchiefs were removed from their faces, the squads all having become separated and the individuals as well, the boys were well scattered over the para-ground, to the intense amusement of the competitors as well as the onlookers.

The following gentlemen were good enough to give their services as officials: Messrs. W. J. Bennett (Headmaster); Judge E. M. Carruthers, Umpire; H. B. D. Lyons, Judge,
High Jump; L. E. Taylor, Judge, Long Jump; G. M. Stanley, Judge, High Jump; Emmans, Judge;
Capt. E. A. Milnes Townsend, Starter.
The following was the programme, and the boys are certainly to be con-

WINFIELD (WOODS LAKE)

We regret to have to announce that there will be no Winfield District Exhibit at the coming Kelowna Fair.
The committee decided that there was not sufficient time to make a thorough collection of specimens and therefore to abandon the idea. It is a pity that such a course has to be adopted, as the display of such excellent produce as we raise here would be a decided boost.

The wind storm of the past week has been so thoroughly discussed that the least said is the better.

Miss E. McDonald has arrived home from Vancouver.

The Junior Choir will practise this week at Mrs. Richard's.

It is likely that the Government will ask the Legislature to sanction the turning over of the income tax to the municipalities, and at the same time abolish the tax exemptions, making all wage-earners liable for payment. It is also suggested that the Government will make a per capita grant on the basis of the number of children attending municipal schools instead of assisting the schools by the payment of $40.00 a teacher.

The prizes were given by local ademen, parents and friends, and Mr. Parker, jeweller, presented a very handsome cup for the championship.

While Mr. Henderson, of the Bank of Montreal, Vernon, gave a very fine Challenge Cup for the championship as well. These were both won by Howard Carruthers, whose average on the day's events placed him well ahead of his fellows. An additional prize in the form of a prettily designed silver medal was given by Mr. Edrie Johnson, of Woods Lake, for the best all-round boy of the term, and was won by Tony Pooley.

After the sports Mrs. Harvey entertained the guests at Chesterfield School, and Mrs. Pooley kindly gave away the prizes, thus terminating a very successful and interesting afternoon. The boys finally gave hearty cheers for Mr. Bennett, Mrs. Harvey and Mrs. Pooley.

G.W.V.A. NOTES

The Women's Auxiliary are holding their annual meeting for election of officers on Wednesday, the 12th inst., at the Club, at 2.30 p.m.

An advertisement recently appeared in the "Cariboo Observer," published in Quesnel, in which a certain cave, owned and managed by Chinese, prominently announces as one of its chief attractions the fact that they employ a white chef.

One child, out of thirteen born in B.C. is of Japanese parentage.

One wonders whether some of the employers of labour in this province care whether it remains white or yellow.

It is to be hoped that there will be a contest in this constituency at the coming election rather than an unopposed return of the present member.

HEARTH-GLOW AND HOMESPUN

By Polly Peel

(Copyrighted by British and Colonial Press, Ltd., 1921.)

THE THREE GASPS

"What is this delicious soup?" I asked, lunching, as I often do, with my friend the Practical Person.

"Oh this," she laughed "is the third and last gasp of a shank of veal."

"Well, if the other two gasps are equal to this I should certainly like to hear about all three," I said.

"You shall, my dear," she promised promptly, and immediately set to work to make the promise good.

"I bought a shank of veal, not a very large one—they weigh anywhere from three to five pounds—washed it and put it into a pot with enough hot water to not quite cover it. Then I added butter about the size of a walnut and cooked it over the simmerer for an hour. After that I put in salt, pepper, onion, and, if I have any leftover bits of celery I always add those too, for I think they improve the flavour. I cooked it for another hour to an hour and a half, keeping enough water on it to make sure it would not burn, and when it was tender I lifted the nicest pieces carefully onto a platter—most of them come away from the bones, and none of the large, ugly bones need appear on the table. I thickened the gravy with a little flour and water, blended, and seasoned it to taste, then strained it and saved the strainings to put back into the stock pot with the bones.

"There, that's the end of the first gasp, and it is really a very good stew."

"I'm sure it must be," I said. "I shall try it right away. And now the second gasp!"

"Well, the pieces that were left in the pot made a lovely mould. When they are cool, if they don't look very nice, put them through the grinder.
I put the bones and the strainings into a quart of cold water, add another small onion and boil for an hour. If I haven't reduced the liquid to about a cup and a half in that time I boil it a little longer, with the cover off. I seasoned the liquid and put half a cup of it into the bottom of a mould, then lightly, and without stirring, added some of the veal, more stock, and so on until the mould was full. To make it prettier one may place slices of hard-boiled egg, pimento, or any other garnish in the bottom of the mould."

"What a nice luncheon dish that would make—and now for this soup?" I persisted.

"For this soup," the Practical Person went on, "I boiled the bones again in a quart of cold water for an hour and a half, strained, seasoned and served. That is really all."

"But what are these minute, jelly-like fragments floating about in it?" I asked.

"Oh, I forgot. I put in two tablespoonfuls of 'minute tapioca' five minutes before serving, and, of course, it depends on the size of the shank and the number of people one is trying to serve, whether or not that third-boiling of the bones will make a stock strong enough in itself for up. If it doesn't, boil it down a little more and add a cup of milk and butter the size of a walnut. Another scheme for improving the flavour, if you should find that it tastes rather flat and weak, is to add a slice of bacon.

"You can do all these three things with a shank of young beef, either, but it will take longer to cook."

"Made-in-B.C." first, Made-in-Canada next, and then Made-in-the-Empire is the real motto of the "Made-in-B.C. Campaign," states Mr. Frank Parsons, chairman of the campaign committee. "The B.C. campaign is therefore part of the Made-in-Canada campaign, and its underlying motive development of the industries within the Empire."

Orchard Run

It is astonishing what a number of "breaks" are made by staff writers in the Coast dailies in regard to simple matters, about which correct information could be obtained with ease from any reference library such as is accessible in the large cities, or from the works of reference which most papers of any standing possess. One of the Vancouver papers a few days ago had a column of gush about a young man in that city who had been informed by wire that his mother had established her descent from a certain old Scottish family and therefore his right to assume a baronetcy dormant for several generations. The article used as equivalent the terms "barony" and "baronetcy," which are entirely different degrees of social precedence. While a baron belongs to the lowest order of nobility, a baronet is not a nobleman at all; he is merely a commoner with the title "Sir," prefixed to his name instead of "Mr." Nor do baronetcies descend in the female line, as is provided in the patents of certain baronies, some of them dating to the twelfth and thirteenth centuries. The origin of the order of baronets is pretty well generally known to school-boys as being due to the financial necessities of James I. who, denied funds for his schemes by a frugal parliament, obtained money by sale of the new title, which conferred no privilege other than a certain amount of social standing.

It is generally expected that the session of the Legislature, which commences on the eighteenth of this month, will be taken up largely with the consideration of methods of aiding municipalities to improve their financial position, but it is doubtful if much new ground will be turned in the discussion of ways and means.
It looks as though fresh sources of revenue will be afforded to the municipalities by transferring collection of the personal property tax from the province to the cities and organized districts, and possibly by sharing the motor car licence fees and by other expedients.

While collection of personal property tax, or income tax, by the municipalities will undoubtedly reach a number who contribute at present little or nothing towards the upkeep of the place in which they reside, owing to their occupancy of rented premises and non-ownership of land, it will not reach those who, having speculated in real estate and having found their purchases unremuner-ative, proceed to shirk their obligations by defaulting in payment of their taxes and allowing the property to pass into the hands of the municipality. The result is that many municipalities have hundreds—in some cases, thousands—of lots on their hands which will take years to dispose of, with prejudicial effect on the value of the property owned by those who have loyally paid their taxes throughout all the lean years.

This evil of defaulting in tax payments should be grappled with firmly, and there is one sovereign remedy—ABOLISH THE TAX SALE.

GLORIOUS WEATHER FOR FALL FAIR AND STAMPEDE

shown by W. H. Morrison & Sons, of Fairlight, Sask. were much admired.
Nearly every pen in the poultry building was occupied, and the exhibition was a very creditable one. All breeds and varieties were well represented, and some beautiful birds were on show.

Side Shows

The side shows put on by the International Amusement Co. provided plenty of variety for seekers of entertainment, what with a merry-go-round, which was liberally patronized by the juveniles, fortune-telling, strength-testing, fat lady and other "wonder" shows. Some games of pure chance were started, but Chief of Police Thomas quickly suppressed them, and only contests in which a certain amount of skill and dexterity was required were permitted to operate.

Opening Ceremonies

A unique informal opening took place in the morning in the form of a cavalcade of over forty cowboys radiant in bright-hued shirts and neckerchiefs, encased as to the lower extremities in woolly "chaps" and mounted upon prancing bronchos. Led by President Elliott, also mounted, they galloped round the town, whooping and cheering and imparting an atmosphere of the old Western life fitting to the occasion of the Stampede.
The formal ceremony took place in the afternoon, in the grand stand.
There had been some uncertainty as to the hour and place, of which no public notice was given in advance, hence one representative of The Courier waited in vain within the exhibition building and another was out of earshot in the judges' stand. No report of the speeches was therefore obtained, but it is understood His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor, who was introduced to the assemblage by President Elliott, in declaring the exhibition open, referred in very complimentary terms to the number and excellence of the exhibits. The crowd cheered and the band played "God Save The King."

THE STAMPEDE

Wednesday

In great contrast to other years, when the first day brought out usually a slim attendance, the events of Wednesday were witnessed by a large crowd, the grand stand having completely engaged the seats, while spectators lined the fence along the course in numbers. An aeroplane, piloted by Mr. Scott Williams, of Vernon, had arrived the previous day and it made an occasional flight over the grounds with passengers. The Vernon Band supplied pleasing music and with the excellent programme, to keep the gathering in good humour.

The first race was started promptly and thereafter the riding of bucking steers and horses, trick and fancy roping and other features kept the attention of the spectators continuously engaged, even the racing events. The centre field was a scene of great animation, with cowboys riding furiously back and forth chasing runaway steers and horses back to their corrals between the bucking and roping. All the latter events were preliminary to the finals to be brought off the following day. The results of the races were as follows:

Five-eighths Mile Dash; free for all; purse, $100. Nine ran. 1. A. Mc-Lean's Maud; 2. P. Ellison's Lady Vernon; 3. J. B. Cleveland's Starlight. Close race, won by half a length. Time, 1.09.
Half-Mile Dash and repeat; free for all; purse, $125. First Heat: 1. J. B.

It is well known that a mortgagee has a remedy at law against a mortgagor who defaults in payment of interest and principal and whose property, when sold under such default, fails to return to the mortgagee the amount due him. He can then get a judgment against the debtor for the balance still owing after the property has been realized, which means that any such balance becomes a personal debt instead of an encumbrance solely upon the land.

In the same way, municipal taxes should become a personal debt and, if they are not paid, judgment should issue against the defaulter through the medium of the local police courts, which should be specially endowed with the requisite jurisdiction, so as to simplify the procedure and avoid legal costs. Provision could be made for registry of the judgment, according to amount, in the usual way and for collection. An owner could not then default and clear himself of his obligations by throwing his property into the hands of the municipality to remain in its possession perhaps for years. In cases where the owner of property had absented himself and could not be found, or judgment could not issue, provision could be made for automatic forfeiture of his property to the municipality concerned after an interval of, say, six months, with no right of redemption. Legislation of this nature would work a wholesome change in regard to the ownership of property. There would be less holding for speculative purposes when the liability for payment of taxes became a personal one instead of being attached solely to the land, as at present, and consequently less evasion of responsibility in the event of the land proving slow to increase in value. The number of lots that would fall under municipal ownership would be largely decreased, and an end would thus be put to the unfair effect upon the value of property of owners who annually meet their obligations by flooding the market with parcels at tax sale values.

Cleveland's Connaught; 2. W. Kruger's Weasel; 3. Hans Richter's Mud Turtle. Six ran. Won by 2 1/2 lengths.
Scotch Final Heat: 1. Connaught; 2. Starlight; 3. Daylight. A fast race, won by two lengths. Time, .55.
Half-Mile Pony Race, 14.2 and under; open to Okanagan ponies; purse, $75. Nine started. 1. G. Smithers' Babe; 2. Tom Peters' Fanny; 3. G. Herald's Scupper. Won by a length and a half. Time, .57.
Cowboy Stake Race; purse, $60. 1.
Casorso Bros' entry, with Alex Mar-chand up; 2. Aeneas Nahamps; 3.
Thorlakson.

Relay Race, two miles (four halves); free for all; purse, $100. Two horses allowed each competitor. Six entered. Each horseman had to saddle his mount, make one round of the course, unsaddle and transfer his saddle to his waiting horse, and change again on the next lap. 1. R. Brent, with Pascoe and Ben; 2. Saul Alex, with Silver and Captain Prater; 3.
W. Kruger, with Anne and Jess.

The chariot race was postponed until the following day and, greatly to the disappointment of the old-timers, who remembered many such exciting events in bygone days, no entries were made for the klotchman's race.

Of the bucking nags the wickedest proved to be "The Frick of Black Mountain," but all his twists and turns, side-winding and hogging could not shake off his redoubtable rider, Charlie Coyote, of the Head of the Lake, who really did a very fine piece of riding in sticking to him.
"Steamboat," announced as an outlaw of the fiercest type, did not prove anything very terrible after all, and "Sky Rocket" acquitted himself with much greater distinction and spilled his rider over his head. A number of the horsemen, and the dust from the backs of other bronchos, but there were no casualties beyond bruises.

Thursday

The sun shone from a cloudless sky all day on Thursday, and the weather was as perfect as the heart of man could desire. No one could resist the appeal of such a lovely Okanagan day, and the people poured into the grounds in great numbers.
The grand stand was filled to its utmost capacity, and the enclosure on either side of it was dense with spectators the full length of the straight.
On the far side of the central enclosure well over a hundred cars were parked and there were dozens more outside the grounds. It was a record crowd, and the hearts of the Directors of the A. and T. Association were glad as they looked upon it.
The Lieutenant-Governor was again in attendance. The keen interest taken by the spectators was shown by the fact that few left until after sundown.

The results of the events were as follows:

Five-eighths Mile Dash and repeat; purse, $150. Four entries. First Heat: 1. Maud; 2. Lady Vernon; 3. Connaught. Won by three lengths. Time, 1.09. Second Heat: 1. Lady Vernon; 2. Maud; 3. Connaught. A very pretty race, won by half a length. Time, 1.08. Final Heat: 1. Maud; 2. Lady Vernon; 3. Connaught. Won by two lengths. Time, 1.09 1/2.

Half-Mile Pony Race, 14.2 and under; free for all; purse, $75. Five ran.
1. Babe; 2. Happy; 3. Fanny. Won by a bare length in a good race. Time, .56.

One Mile Dash; free for all; purse, $125. Three ran. 1. Connaught; 2.
Queenie; 3. Mignon. A regular procession, won by 100 yards. Time, 2.12.

Chariot Race, two horses, half-mile; purse, $50. Two heats were run, as there were only two chariots available for three entries. First Heat: 1. G. D. Cameron; 2. Gus Mc-Donald. Won easily. Time, 1.12 1/2.
Second Heat and Final: 1. G. D. Cameron; 2. F. Casorso. A good race all the way with a splendid finish, Cameron winning by a head. Time, 1.10.
Ladies' Race, half-mile; purse, $50.
This proved one of the best events of the meet. Fourteen entered, and it was necessary to run two heats, the three leaders in each heat to run in final. First Heat: 1. Babe, Miss Murdoch up; 2. Starlight; 3. F. Brent's Chummy. A good race well ridden, won by a length. Second Heat: 1.
W. Kruger's Weasel; 2. Peter's Daylight; 3. Mud Turtle, Miss Barley up.
A very close race, won by a head.
Final: 1. Weasel; 2. Daylight; 3.
Starlight. Won by two lengths.
Time, .55 1/2.

Relay Race, two miles (four halves); free for all; purse, $100. Three raced. 1. Saul Alex, with Silver and Captain Prater; 2. R. Brent; 3. G.
McGregor. Won by several lengths.
Brent and McGregor being unfortunate in having their horses go off the track.

Point to Point Race. One and a half miles from the top of Knox Mountain; purse, $200. This was a very spectacular event, the riders climbing to a jutting point of the mountain from which they raced downward at breakneck speed over very rough and steep ground that an ordinary horseman would be careful about traversing even at a walking pace. The track was entered on the far side and the race finished in front of the grand stand. The tough ponies, untired by their steep climb and strain of their rapid descent, finished at a fast clip. 1. W. Kruger; 2. G. Mc-Gregor; 3. E. Nahumden; 4. P. Ellison. Won by three lengths. Nine raced.

Shetland Pony Race, half-mile; purse, $15. Three started but one of the ponies was not at all ambitious to race and his rider had to abandon the attempt. 1. D. Loane, on Gypsy; 2. B. Lloyd-Jones, on Lassie. Lassie, very much smaller than the other pony, ran pluckily but was defeated by several lengths.

Wild Horse Race; purse, $50. This was a wild event, with a number of bronchos first resisting all efforts to saddle them and when conquered in this respect speedily bucking off their riders. For obvious reasons the race took place within the enclosure, and the distance was roughly from end to end. 1. T. Craigie; 2. Joe Nichols.
The performances of the bucking steers and bronchos outdone anything seen the day before, and the clever riding roused the enthusiasm of the spectators to a high pitch, vigorous rounds of applause greeting those who mastered their turbulent mounts. Tumbles were many but only one rider seemed at all severely hurt, requiring medical attention, but it was reported later that he would be all right and was merely stunned.

GLORIOUS WEATHER FOR FALL FAIR AND STAMPEDE

Gus McGregor displayed great skill in trick riding, lassoing first one, then two, three and four horses at one throw.

It was announced that the final in the bucking contest would be decided the following day, it being proposed to carry on the Stampede programme during Friday and Saturday. The following were given out as winners in the steer roping and steer riding events:

Steer Roping: purse, $225. 1, Felix Casorso, time, 1:44; 2, Gus McGregor, 1:45; 3, J. W. Russell, 2:15.

Steer Riding: purse, $75. 1, Joe Nichols; 2, W. Swallow; 3, J. Frost.

The officials in charge of the sports and races and assistants in the judges' stand were: Sports General Manager, Mr. J. N. Cushing; Stampede Manager, Mr. Felix Casorso; Race Manager, Mr. R. Lambly; Measure, E. Dart, A. E. Ross, A. Edwards, M. Heron; Redman, Kamloops; Harding, Enderby; F. B. Jacques, Vernon; S. C. Smith, Vernon; and R. W. Neil, Vernon, who made an efficient start.

The officials were very energetic and kept the events as near schedule time as possible, any delays being due to the usual slowness of riders in getting their horses to the post.

The crowd had a good laugh at the expense of the judges when a horse which was tied up to the staircase leading up to the judges' stand, the rickety steps loose, leaving the occupants of the stand without any means of coming down until a ladder was procured. The victims joined in the laughter and all ended well, as, although the horse, a fine animal belonging to Mr. R. Lambly, raced over the field dragging the stairs and kicking it to pieces, he escaped without injury.

The aeroplane was kept busy all afternoon making flights with passengers, who must have had a splendid view in the clear atmosphere.

Dances each night formed the termination of a perfect day. The streets were thronged each evening by crowds admiring the gaily decorated store windows, upon which artistic efforts had been brought to bear on a scale not seen on the occasion of previous fairs.

In point of merit the Fair and Stampede justified all the claims made in advance and bore testimony to the sterling hard work of President Elliott and his staff of willing helpers. It is to be hoped that the financial results will prove equally satisfactory and will more than recoup the A. and T. Association for its extremely heavy outlays.

BOLSHIES REPORTED TO OCCUPY VLADIVOSTOK

BERNE, Switzerland, Oct. 6.—News has arrived here that Vladivostok has again been occupied by Bolshevik commissaries. Some members of the White government were captured, others fled. The Japanese are remaining neutral.

FRUGAL SWISS PROFIT BY MONEY VALUES

ZURICH, Switzerland, Oct. 6.—The high value of Swiss money and the low value of that of neighbouring countries is causing unpleasant incidents in the frontier towns of Austria, Germany and Italy on the Swiss border. Every Sunday thousands of Swiss cross the frontier to get cheap meals and provisions, and Monday sees all the frontier districts cleared of supplies to the great discontent of those who need them.

NANSEN ABANDONS LOAN PROJECT TO SOVIET

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Owing to the firm opposition encountered in British circles to his project of floating a fifty million dollar loan for the Soviet Government to enable it to fight the famine, Dr. Nansen, who has returned here, has apparently given up the scheme. He is now trying to garner what he can from various governments. The British Disposal Board has agreed to turn over to the British Red Cross for distribution in the stricken areas of Russia $1,250,000 of army supplies, consisting principally of medical stores.

U.S.A. NOT PRESSING BRITAIN FOR PAYMENT

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Complete denial is given in official quarters here to a report that the United States is pressing Great Britain for payment forthwith of war loans. No communication concerning the matter has passed between the two governments for some time.

THE MARRIED LIFE OF HELEN

By
MABEL HERBERT URNER
Creator of the "Helen and Warren" Characters.

(Copyrighted 1921)

A GOOD TURN BRINGS ITS REWARD

"Jove the Westport Mills have closed—three thousand men thrown out! Warren scowled at the headlines as he took up the evening paper. 'Dear, are things very bad?' Helen moved nearer the light to thread her needle. 'Rotten! More men out of work every day. 'Fraid we're up against it for the next few months.' 'But it doesn't affect you much?' as always her interest reverted to the personal. 'We ought to be thankful you have your own business. At least you can't lose your job.' 'Yes, nothing like your own peanut stand. But with so much unemployment—everybody feels it.' 'Oh, I hope its no one to call,' dropping her sewing to answer the phone. 'Who?' Then with her hand over the mouthpiece. 'Dear, it's a Mr. Ellis to see you. Who is he? Do you want to see him?' 'George Ellis? Of course I do. Have him come up.' 'Who is he?' hurriedly straightening about. 'Move your chair back—you've caught up the rug.' 'Why, you've heard me speak of Ellis. He made a ripping record in the war. Got all kinds of decorations in France. Was pretty badly gassed—but I guess he's all right now.' Darting into her own room for a fluff of powder, she returned to find Warren greeting cordially a tall man with a boyish face but graying hair. 'Ellis, I don't think you've met Mrs. Curtis?' 'I've not had that pleasure,' bowing over Helen's hand. As Warren got out a box of cigars and they settled down in the library, Helen slightly withdrew her chair and took up her sewing. 'Saw Cooper the other day—he was asking about you.' Warren reached for the matches. 'Said he hadn't seen anything of you lately.' 'No, I've been keeping pretty close to the shop—trying to make things go.' 'The shop? Aren't you with Hawley and Wells?' 'No I didn't get my job back. They'd reorganized the business and Wells put his son in my place.' 'Gosh, that's a rotten shame! Thought of course they'd hold your job.' 'Lot of the boys came back to find their jobs filled,' bitterly. 'I tried around for about six months. Couldn't get a thing—so I opened up a small machine shop for myself.' 'Good!' approved Warren. 'Nothing like having your own peanut stand. I was just telling Mrs. Curtis that when you came in.' 'Yes, if you can hold on to it. But it's been pretty hard lately.' He was plainly constrained. Helen had sensed his embarrassment the moment she entered the room. Now, glancing up, she saw his face redden. 'All business is suffering—everybody's feeling this depression,' observed Warren. 'We've got to wait until things straighten out.' 'Some of us can't afford to wait—that's the trouble.' Then abruptly, 'I may as well tell you what I came for. I'm up against it. Unless I can raise three hundred dollars by Monday—they're going to close me out. Curtis, can you let me have two hundred?—I've got the rest.' An awkward pause. Warren studied the ash-flaked end of his cigar. 'It's hard to ask this, Curtis. I know I've no claim on you—and you must think it's mighty nervy. The few I had claims on—turned me down.' Another pause. Then reaching for the ash tray, Warren asked brusquely, 'What kind of a plant have you? Doing any business?' 'It's a small plant but I'm building up a trade. I had to borrow twelve hundred to put in the machinery. I've paid off nine. The rest is due Monday, and they won't renew. I've got more than three hundred outstanding but I can't collect it now. The only security I can give you is my note.' 'Ellis, I don't know what to say. I've got a drawer full of I.O.U.'s—not worth the paper they're written on. I made up my mind a year ago I'd never lend over ten dollars to anybody.' 'That's all right, then,' he rose abruptly. 'No hard feeling. If I hadn't been desperate I'd never have asked you. Just forget it.' 'Now, hold on. I haven't said no, have I? Let me think this over. I'm not any too flush myself just now. Suppose we leave it till tomorrow? I'll send you a cheque, if I can.' Ellis thanked him but he seemed crushed and hopeless. Embarrassed because of his embarrassment. Helen rose to bid him good-night. 'Mrs. Curtis, I owe you an apology for intruding like this.' 'Oh, not at all,' murmured Helen, flushed at the awkwardness of the situation and not knowing what to say. 'Thank you very much.' 'Yes, that was awkward,' with a scowl. 'I'd a hunch something was wrong when he came—but didn't think he was going to hold me up for a loan.' 'I'm sorry for him—but I don't see why he came to you.' 'Suppose it's up to me to do something. He went to France and I didn't!'

'You tried hard enough!—It wasn't your fault you had a valvular heart. Why doesn't his old employer help him? He didn't even give him back his job.' Then anxiously, 'Warren, you're not going to lend it, are you?' 'Don't know whether I am or not.' Walking about the room, his hands in his pockets, he was glowering down at the floor. 'But you hardly know him! He said he hadn't any claim on you!' 'No, but he's a fine fellow—straight as a string. Didn't play up the war end of it either. He's been a darn good sport. And those boys who went over certainly have some claim on us—they're getting a dirty deal all round.' 'Yes, I know,' admitted Helen. Then with a sudden generous impulse, 'Do as you think best. Don't let me influence you. I know I'm close about money—I can't help it. If you think he ought to have it—send it to him.' 'I'm not keen on coughing up two hundred—but I can't turn him down.' Striding to the desk, he took out his cheque book. 'Might as well do it now.' The check made out, he scrawled a hasty note. 'How does this sound?' 'Dear Ellis. Here is my cheque for the two hundred. Sorry you're up against it—hope that it will help you out. Things have been rather close with me lately—that's why I seemed to hesitate.' 'That's enough, isn't it? Just end there, eh?' The letter addressed, sealed and stamped, he gave it to Helen to take out to the mail chute in the hall. Reluctantly she dropped it in. After all, Warren could not afford to lend money to everybody—even if they did deserve it. She wished now she had not spoken so impulsively. 'I wonder if he'll ever pay it back,' dimly, re-entering the library. 'Now, for heaven's sake don't start that,' snapped Warren. 'If you make a loan—make it. Don't go whining about it afterwards.' 'I know that's bad science—I must believe he will. And dear, I'm going to hold the thought of plenty. The more you give the more you receive.' 'You mean the more you give the more's expected of you. Now drop it. I've just been separated from two hundred bones and I don't feel so all-fired cheerful.' 'But there is this great source of supply. If you could only keep in touch with it—we'd be more than compensated for what we give out.' 'Why this sudden fit of generosity? You always kick about every nickel. I shelled out for Ellis, but if anybody else shows up with a touch—they'll get the frozen face. If they think I'm easy—they've another think coming.' 'Dear, listen to this,' still dwelling on her idea of plenty, Helen had opened one of her New Thought books to a marked passage. 'Giving to others, radiating helpfulness, is one of the surest methods of making contact with the Universal Supply of All Good. We have an immortal birthright to an abundance of everything. We have only to—'

'What in blazes is that? Another touch?' Warren strode to the telephone that had broken in on her enthusiastic reading of 'Mind Triumphant.' 'Hello. Yes. . . . Mr. Jordan? R. L. Jordan? . . . Didn't know you were in town. Where're you stopping? . . . Sorry I've an appointment for lunch, but I can see you in the afternoon. . . . 2.30? Fine!' 'Who was it?' fluttered Helen as he turned beaming from the telephone. 'Jordan, from Seattle. Biggest lumber man in the west. I've had some correspondence with him—he's come on to make a contract with the F. & W. Paper Mills.' 'And you're—your're to draw up the papers?' glowed Helen.

'You bet I am! I've been gunning for his business for months. By George, this is a stroke of luck!' 'Luck! Don't call it 'luck! Dear, can't you see?' She was all a thrill. 'This has come because you loaned that money! It's a direct return—I was just reading about the Source of Supply.'

'Well, it's pretty reckless of the old Source to hand out mazuma like that. I'll make a thousand out of this if I make a cent. Big return on a two-hundred dollar ante!' 'Oh, you won't take it seriously. Here's a wonderful demonstration—and you won't believe!' 'Guess you'll have to do the believing for us both. If Jordan's calling me up was a miracle—it was one that needed a helluva lot of preparation. I've been laying pipes to land him for over a year.'

Then with a grin as he again took up his paper, 'But you believe all you want to, Kitten. And keep on mulling over that book. Maybe you can pull down another fat fee from your 'source of supply!'

And associate players of exceptional merit. A TWO-GUN tale of an outlaw who fought on the square. Loaded with robbery, get-away, chase and battle. "The Golden Snare"

A Tale of Mystery and Adventure Strange tales come floating down the Canadian settlements of a madman, the loup garou, whose ghastly figure was seen driving his pack of maulmates across in the long still nights along the rim of the arctic. Of a beautiful girl of mystery held under the spell of the loup garou, who wove snares to catch wild beasts from the tresses of her golden hair. The Royal North Mounted took the trail to get his man—was it a myth or a reality? And once again you see the Bears and the Wolves—the Wild Cats and the Great Wolf Hounds who thrilled you with their vicious acting and intelligence in some of the late Curwood stories. A red blooded picture of adventure.
